

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Methods and systems are provided for accessing relevant information. Relevant information may be accessed in an electronic database. Methods and systems may receive a document in response to a search query. The search query may be parsed to create a set of relevant words, and relevant segments of the received document may be generated, which reflect the set of relevant words. Methods and systems may generate an intermediary document, including identifications of the relevant segments.